President's Message

As we stand before our new millennium, Lebanon Valley College thrives. We educate more students than at any other time in our history and it is done with joy, dedication and quality. All else must remain in humble support of this accomplishment.

To write history before its time is, indeed, pretentious, but I have no doubt that academic year 1997-1998 will appear in our accounts as that time when the college embarked on an era of growth that was at once bold and dramatic. With confidence, trust and enthusiasm, the college community decided that the campus would expand, that facilities would continue to grow in number and quality, that new curricular and extra-curricular programs would be developed, and that our sights would be set on an enrollment goal of 1600 students by the year 2005. To have embarked on such a course is clearly a testament to the mature strength of the entire Lebanon Valley College community.

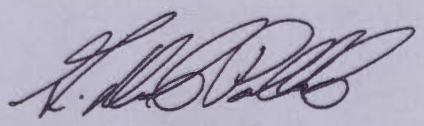

The physical transformation of our campus is obviously so great as to obscure the many other achievements of this last year. And that is quite understandable since the effect was clearly intended to be powerful. The beauty of our Valley is being allowed to show through in full force. Alexander Pope's call to find the "genius within the place" has guided our hand and eye in all that we have wrought. Not satisfied to be "good enough" in anything, everything has been designed with practical and aesthetic ideals in mind. Our gardens, streams, ponds, waterfalls and fountains have been created as much for the soul as for the peace of an orderly mind. Our athletic parks and stadiums not only serve the health of the body, but provide nourishment for the eye. Imagination and reality have become merged in the beauty of our campus.

Truly the occasion has been created and the table set for the art, science and philosophy of our educational mission. And this year showed the incredible vitality of the Valley's academic mission. The board of trustees and the faculty of the college charted a major new direction with the approval of a new Bachelor's and Master's program in the field of physical therapy—the only program of its kind in central Pennsylvania. Beginning in the fall of 1999 and housed in the new Heilman Center, currently under construction, this exciting new program opens the college to new opportunities to serve our region and our students in a critical area of need. Support from the medical community for this new venture has already shown itself to be tremendous.

Across the mission of the college we continue to see the art of teaching and learning carried out with the same dedication and love that has come to be identified with the educators of the Valley. And in symbolic recognition of this, the second endowed chair in the college's history was established. Through the generous support of our dear friends, Drs. Edna and Clark Carmean, Dr. Mark Mecham was appointed to the newly established Carmean Chair of Music. The Carmean Chair stands as another tower of excellence on our educational landscape. Such symbols are the living testimonials to the quality of the intellectual and artistic life of Lebanon Valley College.

To all of you who have and continue to support the students of the Valley, let me express our gratitude. It is my sincere hope that the love and pride you have in the college will always be justified by the responsible stewardship of those you have asked to lead your college at this most exciting time in its history.

G. David Pollick

AN ENVIRONMENT FOR LEARNING

For Lebanon Valley College, fiscal 1997-98 was a year of exciting achievements and a calendar full of red-letter days. Stunning growth initiatives transformed the physical appearance of the campus and also launched new academic and sports programs. The college's momentum attracted increasing numbers of students with an impressive 305 in the fall 1997 freshman class.

If you take a quick stroll across our corner of Annville, you'll find it's a different place from what it was only a year ago. There are beautiful new athletic fields, serene gardens and plazas, and even a brand-new baseball park. Residence halls have been spruced up, the dining hall renovated, and work has begun on a physical therapy educational center—the centerpiece of our newest academic program.

A new Master of Science Education program is underway serving elementary and middle school teachers from throughout the region. Like the physical therapy program, it is building upon the college's traditional strengths in the sciences.

Recruitment for a new ice hockey team began in 1997-98—resulting in a program that attracted 35 new students, brought an exciting new sport to campus, and provided Lebanon Valley with yet another way to distinguish itself from other schools in the region.

Behind each of our accomplishments and every one of our triumphs is the extraordinary generosity of our friends and benefactors. Special thanks goes also to the leadership of the board of trustees—in particular to Ross Fasick '55, chair, and Darwin Glick '58 and Tom Reinhart '58, who have served as advancement committee chairs. It has been a record-breaking year for fund raising, and our good fortune has exceeded all of our expectations:

• We received $5,364,193 from private sources, topping the previous two years by over $1.3 million each year.

• Annual giving reached an all-time high of $1,626,826 from 5,594 donors.

• A $25,000 technology grant from Bell Atlantic, coupled with $18,120 from parents, helped us complete our campus networking project.

Because of these remarkable results, the college was recognized again in 1997 for the second time in recent years by the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) with that organization's Circle of Excellence in Educational Fund Raising Award, which honors outstanding fund-raising programs across the country.

The college's academic programs also received national recognition. For the fifth consecutive year, U.S. News & World Report ranked Lebanon Valley among the top liberal arts colleges in the North.

With so many good things going on here in Annville, word was bound to get out. During the course of the year, Lebanon Valley was highlighted in thousands of news reports, including articles in regional media and such national publications as USA Today, the Christian Science Monitor, The Wall Street Journal, the Chronicle of Higher Education and Consumer Reports. A major regional news conference in May introduced the new physical therapy program and garnered wide coverage in the print and electronic media. In addition, President Pollick served as host for a 12-part PBS series, "The People's Century," which aired on WITF-TV.

To bolster the college's marketing efforts even further, a college-wide task force, chaired by Vice President for Advancement Deborah Read, examined the college from every perspective—academic, co-curricular, athletic and administrative. The end result was an integrated marketing effort that identified our strengths, zeroed in on our major audiences, and helped

Growth in Programs of Study

Adding to a list of recent curricular advances, the college has launched two impressive new graduate programs: the Master of Science Education, which welcomed its first students this year, and the Master of Science in Physical Therapy, which debuts in fall 1999.

The MSE will prepare science educators for the elementary and middle school levels. The MSPT, to be housed in the new Heilman Center, is expected to attract 210 additional students to the college.

Both programs are unique in the region, and both build on LVC's well-established strength in the sciences.

Growth in Co-Curricular Opportunities

One of the keys to providing our students with a rich, well-rounded experience is to offer a wealth of opportunities for learning and growth beyond the classroom. One of the areas in which the college has made great strides is athletics.

This year LVC began recruiting for its newest intercollegiate sport, ice hockey, which is expected to draw new students to campus. It also continued its program of expanding and improving athletic facilities. Highlights include McGill Field for baseball, a new soccer stadium and a softball park. Up next: upgrades to the football field and construction of a 500-seat field hockey stadium.

assure that we present a unified message to all of our constituencies.

Along with our campus—and our presence in the media—our college community is growing, too. The new freshmen and transfer students who arrived on campus this year became part of a student body representing 23 states and 13 countries, and part of a tradition that goes back more than 130 years. They've found a place where technology wires them to the world and prepares them for the future, where beautiful spaces foster quiet reflection, and where young scholars work and play together, building friendships that last a lifetime. What they find at Lebanon Valley is an environment for learning for the twenty-first century.

Here are the highlights of our remarkable year.

SCIENTIFIC METHODS

When it comes to the sciences, Lebanon Valley has always been a small college that gets big results. Our facilities are top-notch, our programs are superb, and our graduates go on to impressive careers—the U.S. Office of Technology Assessment lists LVC among the nation's 100 most productive institutions in science. Our newest academic programs build on our successful scientific formula.

•Master of Science in Physical Therapy. In the fall of 1999, our first class of physical therapy students will begin their five-year program leading to a master's degree, which will enroll an additional 210 students over five years. The program, the only one of its kind in south central Pennsylvania, will be housed in a 35,000-square-foot facility, known as the Heilman Center, that will include state-of-the-art classrooms, laboratories, a wellness pool, fitness center, locker rooms and showers. Now under construction adjacent to the Arnold Sports Center, the building is slated for completion in 1999.

Coursework for the physical therapy major will blend Lebanon Valley's strength in the sciences with its traditional liberal arts emphasis, producing graduates who are not only competent therapists but thoughtful and caring health-care leaders as well. The program is expected to enroll about 20 students next fall, with class size growing to 40 students in each of the five years of study. Eventually, seven or eight faculty members, plus several adjuncts, will be added to the physical therapy staff, under the direction of Dr. Ron Scott.

Construction of the physical therapy facility was made possible by two generous commitments totaling $2.25 million from Dr. Suzanne Heilman Arnold—for whom the building will be named—and Dr. Edward Arnold.

•Master of Science Education. Our Master of Science in Education program—another central-Pennsylvania exclusive—made its debut this year, arming working professionals with the hands-on skills and the confidence to teach science to elementary and middle-school children. The program, requiring 24 hours of coursework as well as a six-credit research thesis and a comprehensive written exam, currently enrolls 26 students. Dr. Mark Ness, who comes to Lebanon Valley College from Bloomsburg University, will serve as both program director and assistant professor of earth sciences.

In addition to the labs and state-of-the-art instruments of the Garber Science Center, MSE students have access to more than 1300 pieces of science materials designed for elementary and middle school classrooms in the Science Equipment Resource Center. The Kreiderheim pond and the newly developed wetlands nature preserve are real-life learning laboratories for teachers to explore ecosystems, learn about plant and animal life, and bring the excitement of science back to their students. In Lebanon Valley's MSE program, teaching professionals will find the best of both worlds—a thorough grounding in theory along with practical ideas to help them go out into the front lines and fire up a new generation of inquiring minds.

A BEACON OF BUSINESS

In an academic landscape dotted with superlatives, Lebanon Valley's Master in Business Administration program can't go unmentioned. The largest MBA program in Central Pennsylvania, it experienced a year of remarkable growth, reaching a total enrollment of nearly 300.

LVC's involvement in MBA studies began in 1985, when Philadelphia College of Textiles and Science used the Annville campus as a remote site for its program. In 1989, LVC began operating the classes on its own, and four years ago Jim Mentzer began as the MBA program director, under whose leadership enrollment has nearly doubled. The program's phenomenal growth is due partly to its flexibility, with multiple locations (Annville, Lancaster and Camp Hill) and rolling enrollment, so students can begin at any time of the year, and its straightforward working philosophy: "Education anytime, any place."

LVC's program is geared to working adults rather than recent college graduates, an emphasis that's reflected in the profile of the typical student—a 34-year-old with 10 years of work experience. Some 62 percent are men, 38 percent are women. They work at jobs ranging from supervisors to top executives to school administrators, and many work for major employers such as Hershey Foods Corp., Rite Aid, Harley Davidson, Gannett Fleming, Armstrong World Industries, AMP Inc., and Highmark Blue Shield.

PLAY BALL!

Athletics have always been an important part of college life at the Valley—an impressive 40 percent of students play intercollegiate sports, and more than 70 percent participate in intramural sports. With new athletic fields and better facilities, more students can take the field for "dear old LVC." Over the past year, in a $3.5 million campus development program, more than 50 acres of fields have been redesigned and 50 new acres added for a total of more than 100 acres of playing space. Here's the play-by-play:

• McGill Field, named for Senior Vice President and Dean of the Faculty Emeritus Dr. William McGill and his wife, Ellen, in recognition of their generous gift and in honor of his years of service as dean, boasts a 500-seat grandstand. The field is enclosed by a curved nine-foot wall patterned in alternate shades of brown and red brick, and landscaped with pear trees and flowering perennials.

• A soccer stadium, adjacent to the baseball park, has been carved out of the hillside with staired-terrace bleachers in the bank overlooking the field.

Growth in Campus Facilities

In recent months, bulldozers have sometimes seemed as common on campus as book bags. In addition to a range of athletic facilities underway or recently completed, construction will soon result in a 35,000 square-foot state-of-the-art facility for the new Master of Science in Physical Therapy program, the Heilman Center.

Dr. Edward H. Arnold

Careful long-range planning has guided every dimension of campus growth. New facilities have supported the college's new curricular and enrollment objectives. Their placement follows a master plan designed to extend our boundaries while preserving the central campus as an academic and residential cluster on a comfortable scale.

Growth in Our Strength as a Community

Sometimes a place—literally a piece of common ground—can become a focal point helping to draw together a community of people. The Peace Garden, a quiet and beautiful refuge adjacent to Centre Hall, seems destined to become one of the landmarks filling this role at Lebanon Valley.

Created with support from alumni, the garden comes into full flower at a time when alumni support and overall involvement in the college is at an all-time high. As the college grows in size and prestige, the garden stands as a touchstone in the heart of campus—a reminder of the shared values at the heart of this community.

• A softball park, located east of the Arnold Sports Center, is being constructed complete with dugouts, warning tracks, bullpens, and top-grade infield material.

• The football field will be upgraded and enclosed to provide more of a "stadium" feel, the grandstands will be modified to provide team meeting and storage space, and a pond with fountains will enhance the north end zone.

• Separate practice fields will be designated for each sport, so teams no longer have to double up on space.

• Additional parking is being made available with 700 new spaces.

• A suspension bridge—with a contemporary flair—will provide safe passageway for pedestrians over Route 934 and easy access to both east and west athletic complexes.

• A 500-seat field hockey stadium featuring a sunken playing field outlined with trees will be constructed at the site of the former baseball diamond and available for the 1999 season.

A PLACE OF BEAUTY

Learning is a journey—and what would a journey be without footpaths for meandering, bridges for exploring, and quiet places for rest and reflection? At Lebanon Valley, students find secluded spaces, breathtaking vistas, and unexpected views that spark their imaginations—and encourage them to visit and learn from one another. These are our newest retreats:

• The Peace Garden. A third-acre of tranquility, the Peace Garden, nestled behind Centre Hall, features a stone patio and spring house, a seating area with an arbor, a waterfall, and a series of small ponds. Beautifully landscaped with crab apple trees, boxwood hedges, holly bushes, and clusters of hydrangea and lilies, the garden's centerpiece is a bronze statue of Frank Aftosmes ("Hot Dog Frank"), the Annville business man who was father figure to generations of Lebanon Valley students. Many alumni contributed support to erect the statue of Hot Dog Frank, and members of the senior classes of 1994, 1995 and 1996 provided funding for many enhancements to the garden.

• Carmean Plaza. Across campus, on the southwest corner of the academic quad, is another quiet retreat, named in honor of Drs. Edna and Clark Carmean, whose generosity and service have strengthened the college through seven decades. The focal point of the wooded, landscaped spot is a seven-foot cast-bronze statue of Cuewe-Pehelle, a mythic Native American figure symbolizing the welcoming spirit and the agricultural bounty of the Lebanon Valley. The name Cuewe-Pehelle is the original form of the word "Quitapahilla" —meaning "a stream that flows from the ground among the pines." The work of award-winning sculptor Audrey Flack, the statue was the gift of the Carmeans. The senior class of 1997 provided funds for the base of the statue.

• The Wetlands. An environmental study area with wetlands and ponds is being developed on the five acres of land just east of the Arnold Sports Center. The area will provide teaching and research opportunities for students and faculty as well as a series of restful parkland walkways for the entire campus community.

STRONGER THAN EVER

In a year of spectacular change, some important things have remained exactly the same. At Lebanon Valley, our mission is the intellectual and emotional growth of young adults—in an atmosphere that challenges them and in settings that inspire them. And when the bulldozers have rolled away and the dust has settled, Lebanon Valley's mission will continue for a new generation of students.

Student Housing (planned)

Clusters of cottages forming a student village on the Kreiderheim grounds, to be constructed in stages as enrollment increases.

McGill Field

Seats up to 500 devoted fans for baseball games.

Soccer Stadium

Carved out of the hillside with staired terrace bleachers in the bank overlooking the field.

Suspension Bridge

A striking new structure providing pedestrian access to our expanded athletic facilities and a gateway to campus for travelers on Route 934.

Field Hockey Stadium

One of a series of new athletic fields adding a total of 50 new acres of playing space to our campus—enough to provide each team with its own practice area.

A wave of growth:

reshaping the environment for learning

Football Fields

To be converted to a stadium-like enclosure as part of a comprehensive upgrade.

The Heilman Center

The Honors Society

The Honors Society of Lebanon Valley College was established on March 15, 1987 to recognize alumni and friends who have planned for the future by naming the college in their will as a beneficiary for $10,000 or more; or by purchasing a charitable gift annuity, establishing a charitable remainder trust, or making gifts of real estate or insurance policies to the college. This group has pledged over $5,000,000 for future buildings, scholarships and endowment to assure the well-being of Lebanon Valley College.

John Coles '98

New Beginnings

The 300 members of the LVC Class of 1998 marched down the aisle and picked up their diplomas on Commencement Day. Among them was John Michael Coles, whose remarkable four years on campus earned him the Howard Anthony Neidig Award, one of the college's highest honors. Named for Professor Emeritus Anthony Neidig, who was chair of the Department of Chemistry from the early 1940s through his retirement in 1985, the award recognizes Cole for following Neidig's example of scholarship and service.

During his senior year, Coles served as student representative on the Strategic Planning and Advancement Committees and as a student member of the college's Board of Trustees. He was also inducted into two academic honor societies and named to the Dean's List every semester. Other activities included coordinating the Quiz Bowl and mentoring middle-school students in the Lebanon Valley Education Partnership program.

"In a small school like LVC everyone has the opportunity to work together," says Coles, now a student at Dickinson Law School. "It was a great experience all around, and receiving the Neidig award was a great honor."

The Honorable Stephen R. Reed, mayor of Pennsylvania's capitol city, received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Lebanon Valley and delivered the Commencement address. Reed, credited with vast improvements in the city's economy, offered advice and inspiration to the graduates. "No matter one's individual vocation or pursuit," he said, "all should be engaged in the life of their country and their community."

Making A Difference

Each year on Founders Day, the college honors those whose work exemplifies the spirit and dedication of Thomas Rhys Vickroy and Miles Rigor, who founded Lebanon Valley in 1866. This year, the Founders Day Award went to Leonard Washington, Jr., retired CEO of the Department of Veterans Affairs Medical Center in Lebanon.

Long active in the community, Washington was a member of the planning committee that designed the Leadership Lebanon Valley Program and now serves as a board member of many community organizations, including the Lebanon Valley Chamber of Commerce and the United Way of Lebanon County. An avid amateur thespian, he's appeared in a number of performances of the Lebanon Community Theatre and Kreider Brothers Productions.

"It gives me great satisfaction to know that my leadership efforts have made a difference," Washington commented as he received the award, "and that I've been able to encourage people to understand that there is an underlying connection among us all. Whether we're giving or receiving, each of us has something to offer this world."

Wired to the World

At Lebanon Valley College, the world is at your fingertips. From the comfort of their dorm rooms, students can turn on their computers and be linked to the finest academic resources—from university libraries to scholarly journals—the planet has to offer. The college is wired to the world, thanks in part to a $25,000 grant from Bell Atlantic, received through the Foundation for Independent Colleges.The grant was used to complete the networking in the dormitories. All residence halls are now wired for voice, data and cable TV, and conduit has been laid for fiber optic cable to connect the dorms to the campus network.

The grant was one of six awards made in a competition that attracted 45 applications. To receive the challenge grant, Lebanon Valley raised an additional $18,120 from current parents for campus technology improvements.

Now students living in all of the college's major residence halls are able to connect directly to the campus network, allowing them to retrieve journal articles, pick up assignments, and browse in the stacks of the Bishop Library—or any of hundreds of libraries around the world.

Home Court Advantage

It's been 25 years since Lebanon Valley College swept through a couple of amazing seasons, bringing home three Middle Atlantic Conference championships and capturing the MAC Southern Basketball Championship in 1972-73. To mark the silver anniversary of their accomplishment, those Dutchmen gathered in Annville on February 14, 1998. Players, coaches—and even the trainer and sports information director from that era—were honored for their contributions to LVC basketball during the half-time ceremony at the alumni basketball game.

Afterward, team members gathered for a reception at Kreiderheim, where they renewed old friendships and reminisced about the season that was.

Eureka!

For a teacher, there isn't anything more satisfying than that moment when a student suddenly truly understands a concept he or she is struggling to learn. That quick flash of understanding makes everything worthwhile, as any teacher will tell you.

These are the moments that Lebanon Valley honors through the Thomas Rhys Vickroy Award for Teaching. This year's recipient was Dr. Mark Mecham, chair and Clark and Edna Carmean Distinguished Professor of Music, who calls teaching "the motivation, the thing that keeps me moving." This honor recognizes Mecham's efforts over the past eight years to revitalize the Music Department through his hands-on work as an administrator, a teacher and a choral conductor.

"I really do love teaching," admits Mecham, whose course load includes such offerings as Choral Methods and History of American Music, "so this award was a great pat on the back."

Also honored was Arlen Greiner, adjunct assistant professor of physics, who received the Nevelyn J. Knisley Award for Inspirational Teaching. Greiner served as one of the co-investigators on a proposal to the National Science Foundation which resulted in a grant to the Physics Department for a scanning probe microscope. Greiner has also received many commendations from students for his professionalism and dedication to teaching.

A Life in Music

"What Lebanon Valley did for me," the late Mary Eckert Hoffman '48 once said, "was to make me a music teacher, and a damn fine one." And though she went on to achieve some remarkable accomplishments—she served as president of the prestigious Music Educators National Conference, coauthored text books, published choral compositions, and won a trunk full of honors—it was her teaching that brought her the most joy. And when she passed away in 1997, she remembered the school that had trained her to become a teacher, through a bequest totalling $403,896 and annual royalties from the sale of her music education books.

Hoffman majored in music education at the Valley, then went on to teach in Pennsylvania and Delaware while earning her master's degree from Teacher's College, Columbia University. She later became professor of music and music education at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Hoffman's gift will become the basis of a fund to support priorities in the Music Department that will benefit every student.

Lebanon Valley Students in Salamanca, Spain

The World Is Our Campus

In an ancient port city on the southern coast of Crete, 10 thoroughly modern American students read Homer, learned about Greek history, and slipped into the rhythms of an older, quieter way of life. Under the direction of Dr. Phil Billings, professor of English, the students experienced Annville-on-the Mediterranean at the college's study-abroad program in Hania, Crete.

And when they returned home, they were a little more confident, a lot more open-minded, and determined to throw themselves into life with the kind of spirit they saw among the people in Crete.

For the growing contingent of Lebanon Valley students venturing overseas—58 this academic year, up from just 2 in 1993—the world is a much smaller place than they ever imagined. They're studying in London, Crete, Montpelier, Salamanca, and Cologne. They're sharpening their language skills and learning to feel at home in cultures that are very different from their own. They're seeing Hamlet performed in Shakespeare's adopted city, studying medieval architecture in the cathedral of Cologne, and reading Plato on the island that gave birth to Greek civilization.

But while they're away, they're still very much a part of our campus. Courses and schedules have been designed to dovetail with the LVC curriculum, and the settings provide a comfort zone for students, many of whom are first-time travelers. "Students are finding out that people halfway across the world aren't that different," says Billings. "Or maybe they are, and sometimes that's even better."

The Spirit of '98

There's something about the Class of '98—and if you want to find out exactly what, head over to Sheridan Avenue and check out Centre Hall, soon to become the Alumni House. At LVC's 129th Commencement, the senior class presented their record-breaking gift—a check for $26,065 to transform the entrance and the foyer of the house. A remarkable 71 percent of the class participated in the fund-raising efforts, spearheaded by class president Cori Nolen and her hard-working committee. "All of us have received so much from the college," she says. "Not only what we learned in the classroom, but from the experiences, the friendships and the opportunities to grow. We've been through so much together over our four years at the college, and this was our chance to give something back."

Class of 1948 50th Reunion portrait

A Class to Remember

When the Class of 1948 arrived in Annville as freshmen, World War II was still raging in Europe and Asia and deprivation was the order of the day at home. But the hard times only seemed to strengthen the bonds of this remarkable class.

Last spring, they returned to campus for their 50th reunion, still an amazingly tight-knit group. The occasion was highlighted by an informal gathering in the Frock Conference Room of the Bishop Library. There, Elaine Frock Stepanek '48 was presented with a gift recognizing her generous support to the college.

Stepanek shared the spotlight with her classmates, who banded together yet again to earn two awards for their generosity to the college—the Quittie Cup for an impressive 59 percent participation rate, and the Founders Cup, recognizing their gifts in support of annual giving totalling $50,764 during the 1997-98 academic year.

Supporting Research Efforts

A sense of curiosity lies at the heart of research at the Valley, and it's supported in great measure by grants from foundations and corporations. This year has been a banner year for grants to our academic departments. The Physics Department received an equipment grant of $42,700 from the National Science Foundation and the Kresge Foundation, to purchase a scanning probe microscope to provide three-dimensional images of surfaces from the atomic scale. The microscope will be introduced into the biology, physics, and chemistry programs, as well as the Master of Science in Education program. Directing the project will be Dr. Barry Hurst, professor of physics, assisted by Dr. Michael Day and Arlen Greiner.

Dr. Carl Wigal, associate professor of chemistry, received a $30,000 grant from the Petroleum Research Fund, supporting his efforts to develop a new method for synthesizing quinone derivatives, which could become new antibiotics or antioxidants. Wigal also received a $5,000 grant from the Exxon Education Foundation to help further his research. Over the past three years, he's received $15,000 from Exxon to assist his efforts in undergraduate chemical research.

Robert Leonard, professor and chair of management, received a $135,000 grant from the Department of Health and Human Services. The funds provided summer training sessions conducted by the Executive Development Institute, which Leonard founded in 1987 to provide management training for nonprofit organizations.

FRIENDS OF THE GALLERY

"Art deals with things forever incapable of definition that belong to love, beauty, joy and worship; the shapes, powers and glory of which are forever building, unbuilding, rebuilding in each man's soul, and the soul of the whole world."

All Roads Lead to Annville...

At least for Bruce and Janet Rismiller, '59, '59. Though their careers have taken them on some unexpected paths, they've always found their way back to their alma mater.

Bruce, who played football for LVC, had planned to teach history but wound up in the business world instead. A former corporate vice president for Xerox, he was also employed by Carson Pirie Scott and Northwest Airlines during his career. Janet, an education major at LVC, taught elementary school for 15 years.

In 1992, the couple retired to Williamsburg, Virginia, where they found themselves with the leisure time to strengthen their ties to Lebanon Valley and the desire to give back to the college that gave them their start. Their most recent gift is a generous Charitable Lead Trust, where income earned from the trust will be given to the college annually for 15 years. At the close of the trust, the remainder will return to the Rismiller family.

"This is payback time for us," says Rismiller. "Our gratitude is the basis for everything we've been able to do for the college. Without the support of alumni and friends back in the '50s, I would never have been able to go to LVC, and this is our chance to say thank you to the place that gave us so much."

Distinguished alumna Dr. Edna Carmean '59

Alumna of the Year

Generations of students have come and gone since Dr. Edna Carmean '59 arrived at LVC in the fall of 1933, but she is still very much a part of life at the Valley. To honor her lifetime of commitment to her alma mater, the Alumni Association presented her with the Distinguished Alumni Award. "My life has been bound up in the college," she says, "and I'm proud of receiving this award."

Carmean came to Annville when her husband, Dr. D. Clark Carmean, accepted a position on the music faculty. The college, she said, embraced her from the start, and she gave back wholeheartedly. She rolled up her sleeves and went to work, doing whatever needed to be done, from serving as a dorm parent to co-chairing the Toward 2001 campaign. She's been an editor in the College Relations Office, an unofficial admissions officer, a patron of the arts, and a volunteer for a host of college events and activities. Since retiring, she's written four books. "Mine hasn't been a rocking-chair retirement," she observes.

But one of her proudest accomplishments is graduating from Lebanon Valley College. "I only decided to matriculate and work toward my degree when I was in my fifties," Carmean recalls. "But I received a wonderful education and I think my degree helped me in many ways."

LEBANON VALLEY EDUCATION PARTNERSHIP

The Lebanon Valley Education Partnership is a program carried out with the Lebanon School District that encourages young people to consider attending college. The three-part program familiarizes students with the college environment, identifies those qualified to pursue a college education and provides scholarship funds if they should choose Lebanon Valley.

Each September for the past eight years, friends of the college and representatives from local businesses have participated in a golf outing at the Lebanon Country Club. The tournament has raised over $328,000 for scholarship assistance. The honorary chair each year has been Lebanon native Sam Bowie, former center for the Los Angeles Lakers.

Artist-in-residence G. Daniel Massad

Ordinary Objects, Transformed

The Suzanne H. Arnold Art Gallery was the setting for a remarkable exhibit by Lebanon Valley's artist-in-residence, G. Daniel Massad. The exhibit, "G. Daniel Massad: Recent Still Lifes" celebrated the most recent achievements of the renowned painter who calls Annville his home. Before opening at LVC this past spring, the exhibition was on display at the Tatistcheff Gallery in New York.

A master of meticulously rendered still life works, Massad imbues even the most commonplace of objects with expressive tensions. Modeling forms in powerful lights and darks, he invites viewers to find their own deeply personal meanings in the ordinary, everyday objects that his paintings depict.

"It is the image that drives me," Massad explains. "The image and its power to absorb us briefly in its world and to return us to our own lives with clear eyes, calm hearts."

Massad's works are in the permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York; the Art Institute of Chicago; and the National Museum of American Art, Washington, D.C.

Partners in Learning

They're just ordinary kids who like to hang around with their friends, watch movies and play video games. But just wait a few years and maybe you'll see them on campus as full-fledged LVC students.

These Lebanon High School students are the focal point of the Lebanon Valley Education Partnership, which involved 128 students in grades eight through twelve during 1997-98.

The Partnership begins when all Lebanon middle-schoolers visit the campus to become familiar with college life. When students reach eighth grade, the Lebanon School District selects 30 who qualify academically and economically for the Partnership program. Each is matched with an LVC freshman student mentor who works with him or her over the next four years. The mentor encourages the student to do the academic work that will prepare him or her for college, invites the student to attend events on the Lebanon Valley campus, and in general acts as an advisor and friend.

When it comes time to apply for college, Lebanon Valley helps Partnership students apply to the college of their choice. If they select LVC, there is a scholarship waiting for them here—thanks to funds raised through the annual Achievement Challenge Golf Tournament. The 1997 tournament, which involved over 100 Lebanon County business leaders, raised in excess of $54,000 for the Partnership Program. Since its inception in 1990, the tournament has raised more than $328,000.
